CHIROPRACTIC AND FUNCTIONAL MEDICINE

Dr. Clint Brauchla graduated with an Associates in Arts from Ball State University in Muncie, Indiana. He moved to St. Louis, Missouri to attend Logan College of Chiropractic and graduated in 2004 with a Doctorate of Chiropractic, a Bachelor of Human Biology and a Certification in Acupuncture.

During school, he met his wife Dr. Kelly. After graduation, they moved back to his hometown of Anderson, Indiana and opened up Brauchla Family Chiropractic in 2005. He is licensed to practice acupuncture and chiropractic in Indiana.

Why did you want to become a Chiropractor?

"I originally became interested in chiropractic to take care of my friends and family health. While at school I discovered that chiropractic is more than just back and neck pain, it's about giving people their health back. That is why I've committed myself to get as many people healthy as possible."
